

Abstract:

Fuzzy differential equations (FDEs) are a natural way to model dynamical systems under uncertainty. There are several approaches to the study of FDEs. In this talk, using the concept of generalized differentially, we consider first and higher order fuzzy differential equations and we discuss about the properties of their solutions. Finally we present some new numerical methods to approximate solution of FDEs.